833 Montileu Avenue
High Point, NC 27262

Community begins with the individual as we unite for a common purpose. At High Point University we are a community of individuals striving for the purpose of receiving the best education possible. Education is intrinsically tied to all that we do as a community, whether it is in the classroom or in the residence hall. As a community we strive to be purposeful in our goals, open and just as we deal with issues that confront us, disciplined and caring, and celebrative as we share our heritage and history.

As they leave a faculty meeting, Dr. Martinson and Gray Bowman admire the recently renovated Campus Center brick patio.

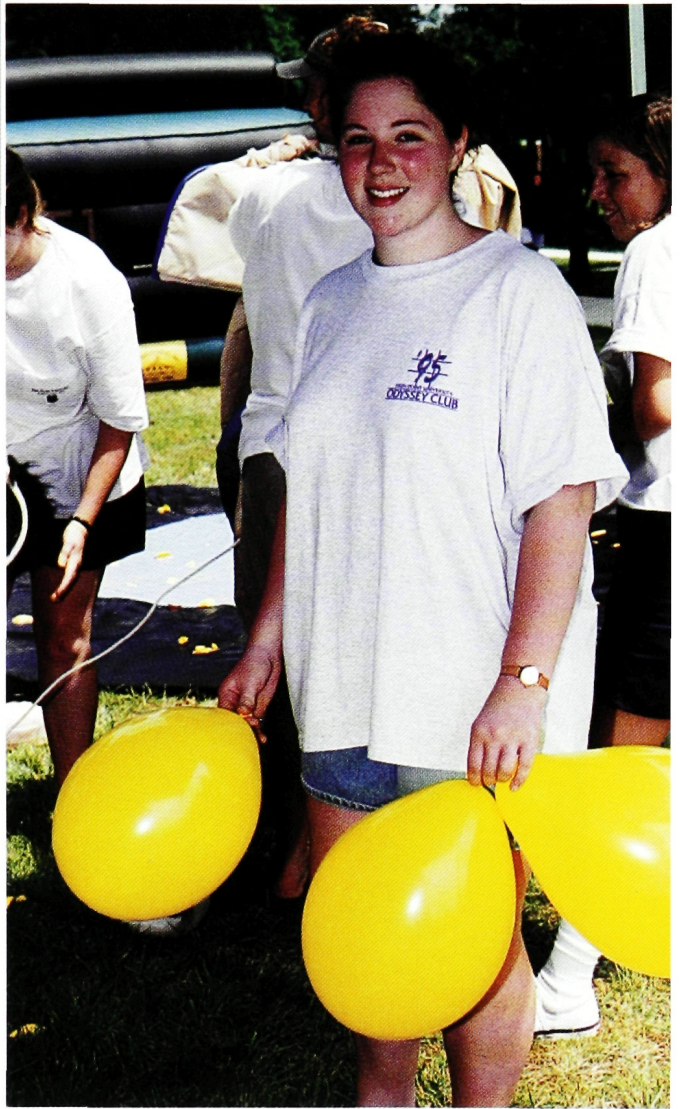

Circle K members participate in Hands On High Point as they clean up Parkview Elementary School. The group also planted trees on the grounds in the day-long volunteer effort.

High Point University is a community dedicated to quality education, inside and outside the classroom. It is not uncommon to see professors and students discussing issues as they walk along the Greensward, or overhear a heated debate between students in the cafeteria. This environment of higher education promotes exploration and growth, both personally and intellectually. It is here, in our community, that we foster the tools of education that we shall carry with us for a lifetime.

Opening Convocation

A time for reflection and anticipation

Faculty Marshal Dr. James Stitt spends a few quiet moments alone before leading in his colleagues to begin the ceremony.

Faculty and staff members head across campus to the auditorium for Opening Convocation.

Dr. Martinson presides over the ceremony, offering words of wisdom and comfort to new and returning students, faculty, staff, and friends of the University.

Junior Marshals Melinda Smith and Julie Sauerby enjoy the prestige of the purple sash and the honor of being top of their class.

Dr. Jacob C. Martinson, President
High Point University

Dr. Hal Warlick, minister of the University and Chairman of the Religion Department, prepares to give the benediction.

Bob Davidson and Dr. A. Berry
Crawford, Culp Professor of Applied
Ethics, spend a few minutes catching up on each other's summer while the faculty mills about before Opening
Convocation on August 24.

To those of you in the Class of 1996, we celebrate and honor your commencement and the embarking of a new direction in your lives.

Life beyond this university will be filled with countless challenges from all directions, many expected, many unexpected, some happy, some not so happy. Those of you who go into the graduate programs will find that not all the teachers you meet will be of the quality of those here. As you go forward, you will look back at the time you spent here with a warm heart and as some of the most important years of your lives.

As we all know, if our university experience does anything, it enables us to be better servants to those around us as well as better human beings. All of us know that a satisfactory life must be measured by its usefulness to others and to God.

May the Class of 1996 go forth to apply wisdom in service.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Jacob C. Martinson".

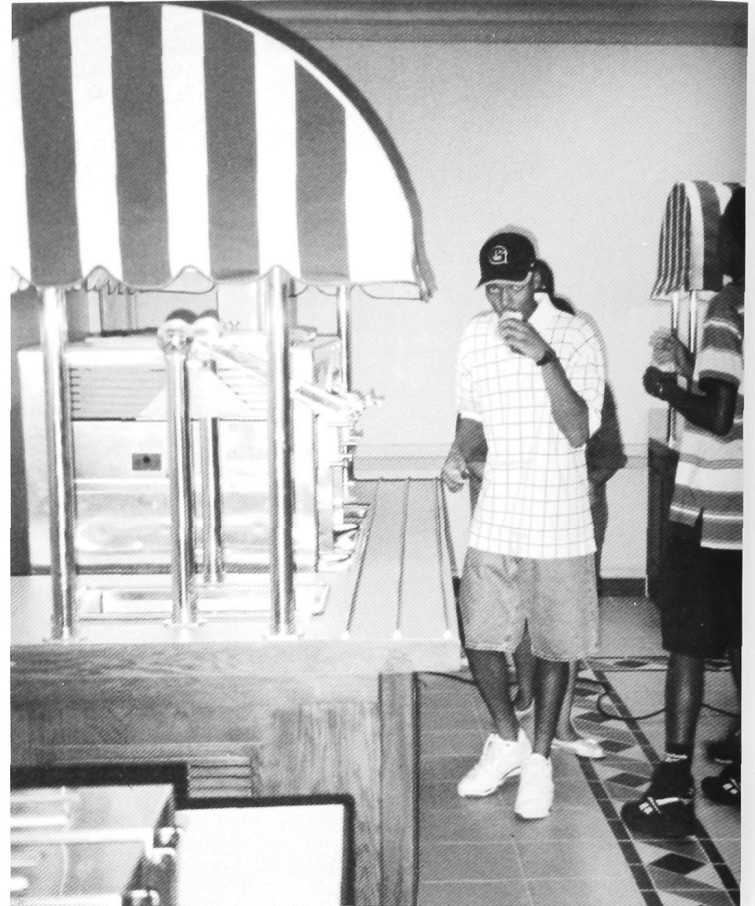

Jacob C. Martinson
President

Heather Sinclair takes a walk on the new bricks in front of the Campus Center to buy the High Point Enterprise. Copies of Winston-Salem Journal, Greensboro News & Record, and USA Today are available. Students can now get all the news in less than half the time.

Andre samples ice cream from the new soft-serve machine in the cafeteria. Other changes include a free-standing kiosk for buffet-style service and a new tile floor and carpeting throughout the dining hall.

Foreign exchange students Pam Green and Renee Clark have a talk as they take a leisurely stroll along the Greensward in front of Finch Hall.

Cooke Hall gets a face lift during the school year as it gets ready for the upgraded computer lab. Students will be able to access the Information Highway as well as take computer courses.

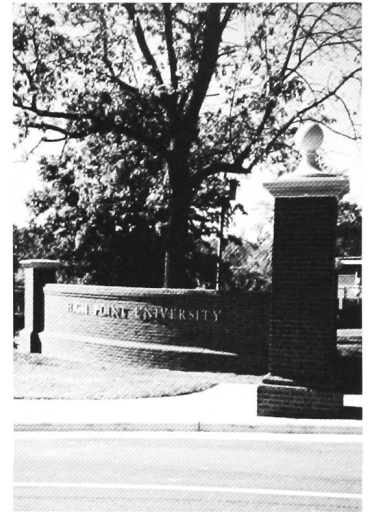

Susan Prouty and Carrie Moore enjoy a tete-a-tete on the new sofa in Belk Hall. All residence halls got new couches and tables in the lounges.

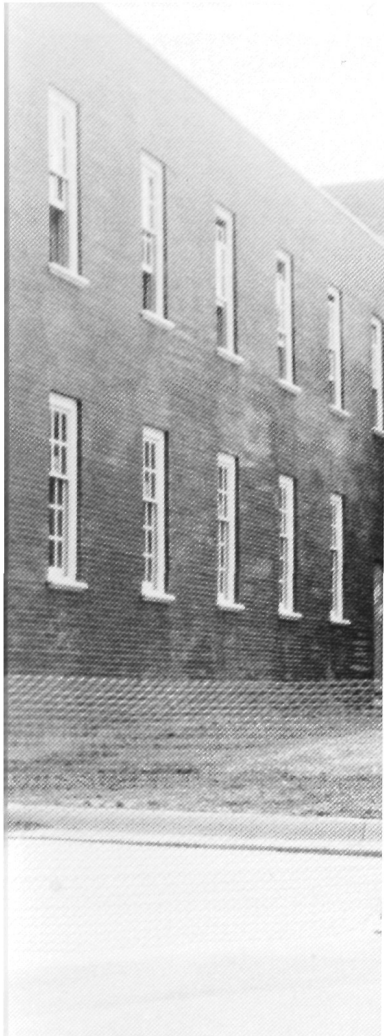

A circular drive and brass lettering grace the new entrance to the University from Montileu Avenue. Another similar circle is located on West College Drive.

Founder's Campaign vision is realized as several changes occur throughout the University

RENOVATIONS & RESULTS

As with most institutions of higher learning, High Point University is a center for growth, change and new ideas. This was apparent even in our physical surroundings as improvements were made in several buildings, which ultimately benefitted our students and campus community. New classrooms, computer labs, attractive renovations to the cafeteria and residence halls enhanced the feeling of growth.

ORIENTATION

A Crash Course In College

Professor Know-It-All shares his wealth of knowledge with students and staff alike.

Registration can be an overwhelming experience for some, but this lucky freshman gets one-on-one guidance.

A lone freshman stands ready to face the challenges of living in a residence hall.

Ready, set, go! Freshmen go all out in the Bungee Run during the Orientation Lawn Party.

Sumo wrestling was a ton of fun for everyone.

A Closer Look At Orientation

Orientation marks a time of transition for our new students, their families, and our campus community. For some, it is a time of welcome; for others, a time to say goodbye (for now) and best wishes for the days ahead.

Each step within this two week long program is carefully designed to create a sense of understanding of the University, personal achievement, and belonging for everyone involved. Student Orientation Leaders guide their student groups through the rigors of registering, meetings, residence hall move in, and events, while giving each student special attention.

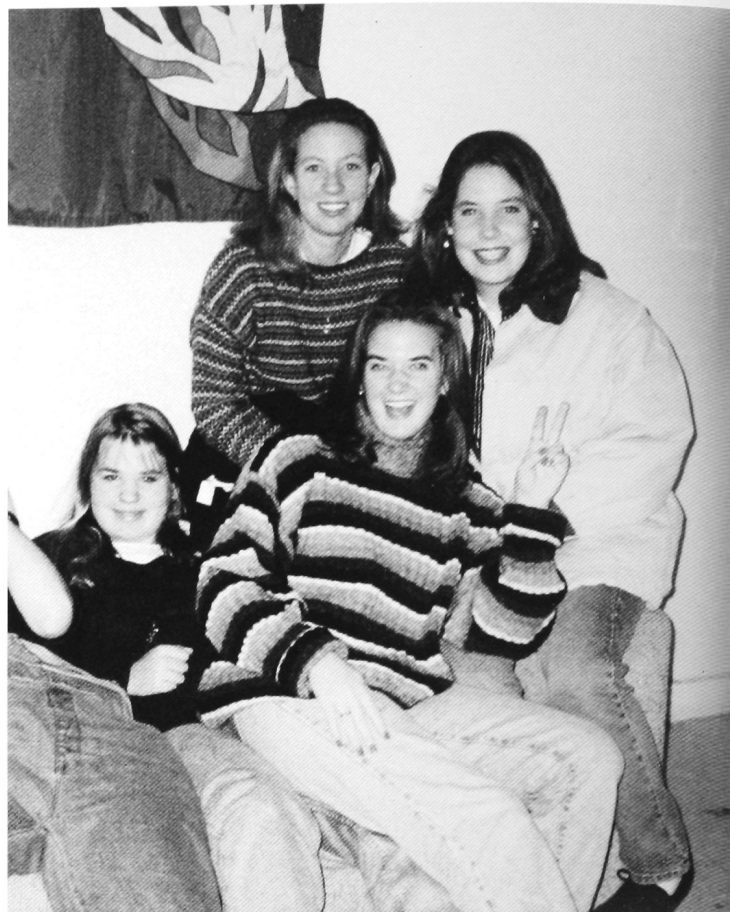

Orientation also included several social events which gave new and returning students a chance to mingle. By the end of these two weeks, freshmen could sit back and know they just survived a crash course in what it is like to be in college.

Channel surfing has become a popular past-time since cable was installed in all of the Residence Halls.

Wendy Whitenight and Mariko Koike hang out in McEwen Hall before leaving for a night out dancing at a local club.

More than just a place to sleep

Residence Halls

Students spend almost 70% of their time outside of the classroom, and much of that extra time is spent in the Residence Halls. Many students make the mistake of referring to their halls as "dorms", but there is more going on than just sleeping. Resident Assistants plan hall meetings and educational programming. Community Councils meet and decide on ways to improve their communities. Study groups and informal "gab" sessions can be found in any lounge at all hours of the day or night.

HOMECOMING

Homecoming King and Queen Keith Anderson and April Sides pause briefly as Dr. Martinson introduces the new court.

Melissa Lansberg, Colleen O'Brien, and April Sides await the announcement of Homecoming Queen 1995.

A Star-lit Sail Dazzles Students and Alumni

Boasting record ticket sales, Homecoming proved to be a stellar success. Held at Market Square, over 800 students, alumni, faculty, and staff gathered to celebrate being a part of High Point University.

The Homecoming Committee used over 10,000 feet of white lights, 400 balloons, and made two gold sailboats and a sunken ship to carry out the theme, "A Star-Lit Sail."

Students voted the preceding week on their choices for Homecoming King and Queen. The big man on campus was Keith Anderson, and a surprised April Sides was selected as queen of the event.

The dance floor remained packed all night as revelers danced to the alternating sounds of an eight-piece band, Ron Moody and the Centaurs, and a DJ. But, alas, all good parties must end. Those who attended left with more wonderful memories of being a part of the University.

Carol Boggess and James Eisenbry beam with pride at the success of Homecoming. Both students were members of the Homecoming Committee and spent two days decorating for the event.

The spirit of giving

Volunteerism

Being a part of a community means helping others. At High Point University, students log over 15,000 hours in community service volunteer activities. The Campus Connection Volunteer Center helped match up volunteers with agencies in need. The American Red Cross held several blood drives during the year and students responded by donating over 100 pints of blood. Through all that we do, we have proven ourselves as a community that cares.

Bye Bye Birdie

Renee Clark performs "The Telephone Hour".

As Conrad Birdie arrives in Sweet Apple, Ohio, he is swamped by reporters. His agent, Albert Peterson played by Brian Ersalesi, fields questions for the star.

Kim MacAfee bemoans what it's like to be a teenage girl.

The word of Kim's pinning spreads like wildfire during "The Telephone Hour."

Ardent fans proclaim their love for Conrad Birdie as they repeatedly sing "We Love You, Conrad."

Tower Players Draft Top Actors for Fall Musical

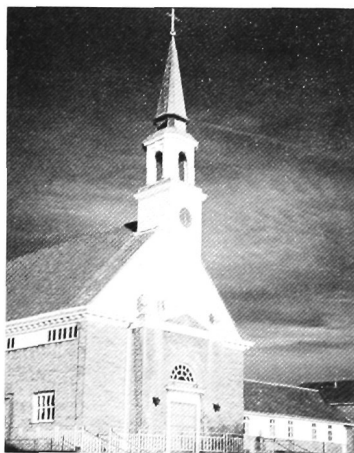

Continuing their tradition of excellence, the Tower Players entertained audiences with spectacular Family Weekend performances of Bye Bye Birdie. Director Rodney Luck led a talented cast in three well-attended shows November 2-4, 1995.

Auditions were open to the campus to create the slate of actors. Shannon Magee, a freshman member of the cast, said, "I really had a good time doing it (the play). We had a lot of fun, and I met a lot of people." Several veteran actors from last year's production, Annie, returned to the stage. David Miller played Hugo Peabody, Brian Ersalesi played Albert Peterson, and Chase Bowers played Rose Alvarez. Paul Cottrell, a sophomore who saw the show, commented that David Miller's personality matched that of the character he played. "It made the show more enjoyable to see David so comfortable in his part."

Spanning the globe

I

nternational students

At High Point University we are part of a greater, global community. Each year we welcome students from over 30 countries. As we embrace different cultures on our own campus, we send forth our own students who travel abroad to live and visit and learn about other people and their ways.

This unique blend of national and international viewpoints adds to our campus community and helps make High Point University part of the global community.

Campus Activities

Learning outside the classroom

Students enjoy some friendly competition during the Orientation Lawn Party sponsored by the Student Life Office.

Students and staff participate in the first-time offered karate class for non-credit.

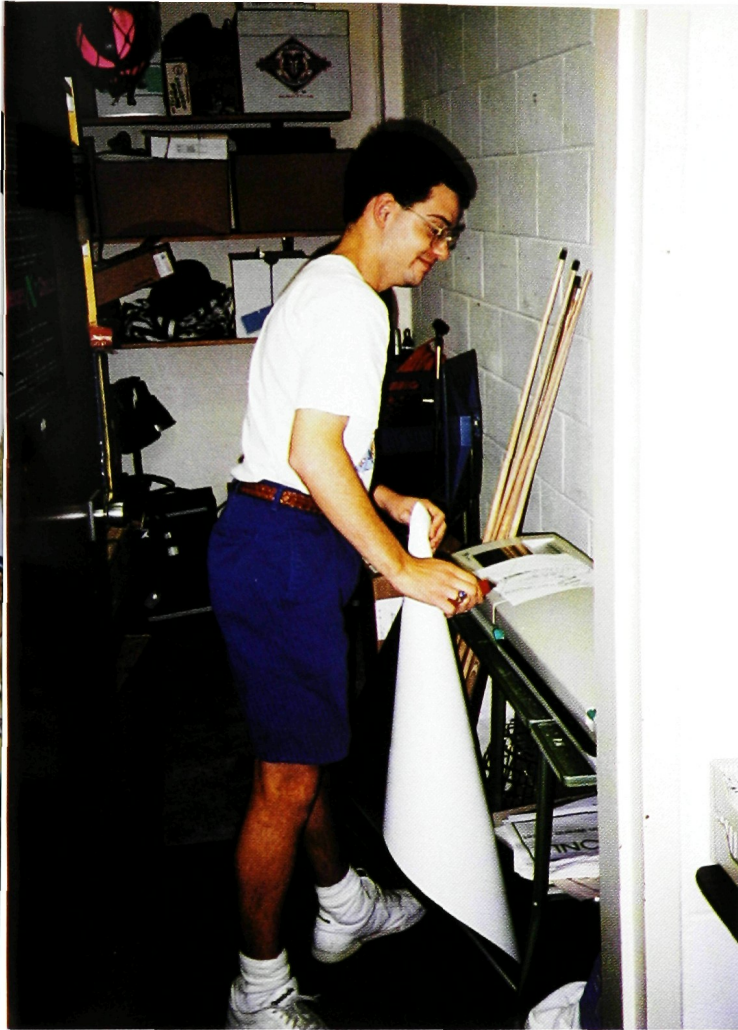

Virtuality is a big hit as students ventured into the world of 3-D virtual reality sponsored by the Office of Student Activities.

Orientation is a joint venture between the academic and student life offices, but the real driving force is the volunteer efforts of the upperclass students who served as leaders and mentors.

Paul Cottrell, Student Activities Board Publicity Chair, finishes another poster to advertise an upcoming event.

Regency 5-Man a capella singing group rocked the Cafe at another Student Activities Board Event.

Chapel services are another way students can gather share fellowship while learning in a non-classroom setting.

Involvement: The Key to Success with Campus Activities

When class and study time were over, it was time to get involved with campus activities. Virtually every night of the week boasted an opportunity for students to attend meetings, hall programs and special event productions. A Leadership Lecture Series was conducted on Tuesday nights by the Office of Student Activities, while on-campus Chapel Services drew students together in fellowship on Wednesday nights. Thursdays hosted special event programming by the newly restructured Student Activities Board, which became a branch of the Student Government Association. Off-campus excursions on Fridays helped students get to know our local area by visiting the zoo, bowling alleys, museums, etc. The big draw for most students was Saturday nights at the movies, an event sponsored by the Student Activities Board.

Having fun and playing hard

Intramurals

No campus would be complete without an organized program that allowed physical activity paired with fun and fellowship. At High Point University the Intramural Program helped fulfill that mission and promoted good sportsmanship and encouraged outdoor activity and friendly competition. Brian Kemp, Intramural Director, planned a comprehensive program which included soccer, volleyball, basketball, tennis, water sports, softball and racquetball.

Holidays

Celebrating special times with our campus and local community

Members of the Panhellenic Council prepare luminaries prior to the Lessons and Carols Service.

The HighPoint University Panther gets up close and personal during the Halloween party.

Students from campus organizations help guide the elementary children safely around campus as they go trick-or-treating.

Children from Parkview Elementary search among the spring flowers for hidden Easter eggs.

Julie Sauerbry and Michelle Webb get into the holiday spirit as they lead the procession to the Christmas tree lighting.

Kyle Wade proves he is a good sport by donning his alter ego "The Great Pumpkin".

Holidays:
A time to show
we care.

Holidays were a wonderful time to be on campus and share in the joy of the season. As we celebrated High Point University traditions like the Lessons and Carols Chapel service and the Christmas tree lighting, new traditions were being formed.

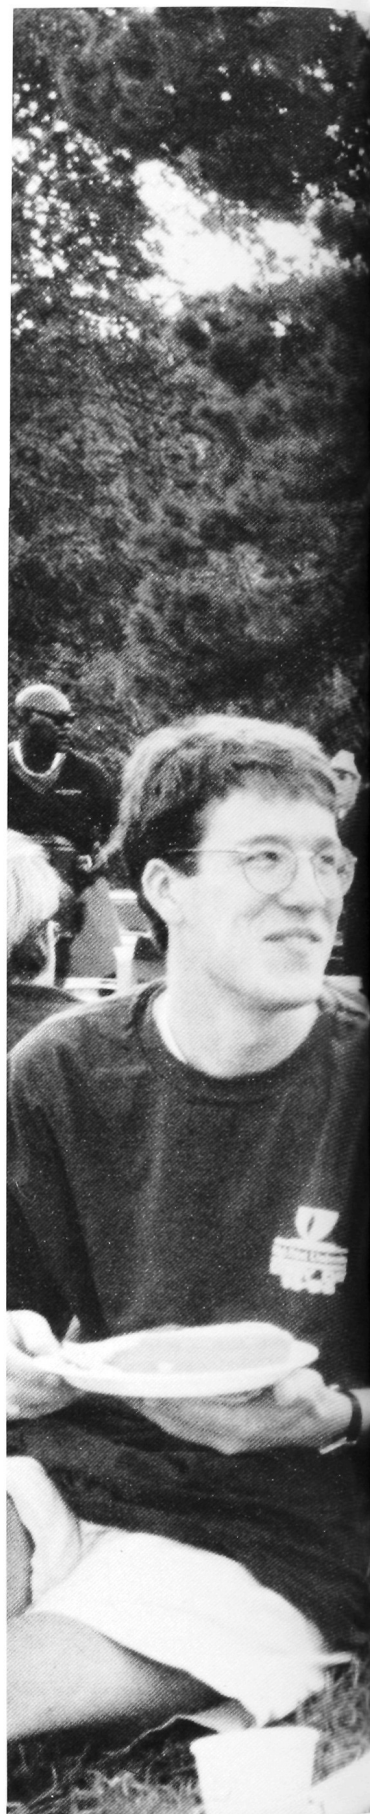

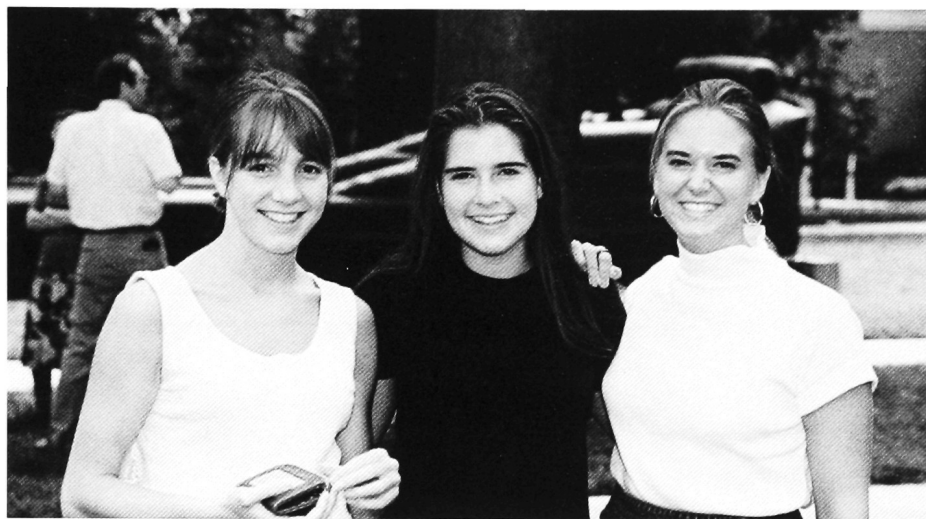

Last year, a group of students, headed by Keith Corbett, began inviting under-privileged children from the community to share Halloween and Easter with our students. Over 150 children participated in each event, and the student volunteer response spanned the campus.

High Point University is a community that celebrates and cherishes the holidays and chooses to share by giving the best of ourselves.

We are from near and far, but we come together to form one community - High Point University

GRADUATE STUDIES

MASTER OF SCIENCE BUSINESS PROGRAMS

Students in the Human Issues in Contemporary Management class discuss the theories they study and how they relate to personal experiences.

Graduate Students in Management: Jim Cortes, David Blackman, Ann Leak.

A Closer Look

Dennis Bogue

Management Major

"The program is very busy and very good. I own my own business, and I can use the information from my classes in my daily work."

Ann Leak

Management Major

"I love the program. It's hard, but I'm having so much fun. It's so convenient for a working person coming to class once a week."

Malinda Day

International Management Major

"The program is a great asset to our area. This degree is the foundation I needed to go into international trade."

Jim Cortes

Management Major

"Professionally, this program has helped me get a better job. Personally, I'm expanding my horizons and making new friends."

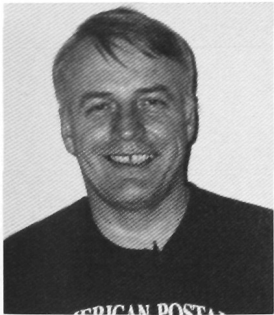

Dr. Carole Head introduces guest lecturer, Ms. Marielle Belhassen, to her Intercultural Perspectives in Business class.

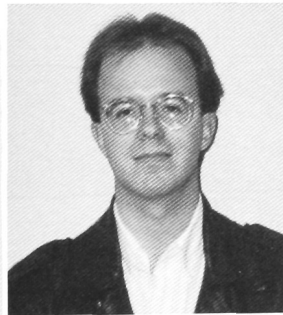

Dr. Marlon Winters prepares to hand out his brain-teasing midterm exam to an anxious group of students.

Smaller classes make it easier for students interact and enjoy each other and their professors.

Mac McGuire

International Management Major
 "The program is very interesting, very stimulating. I want to teach economics or international business when I retire from the post office."

Jassen Bury

Management Major
 "I graduated from James Madison University and was looking for a good program. I applied here first and was accepted!"

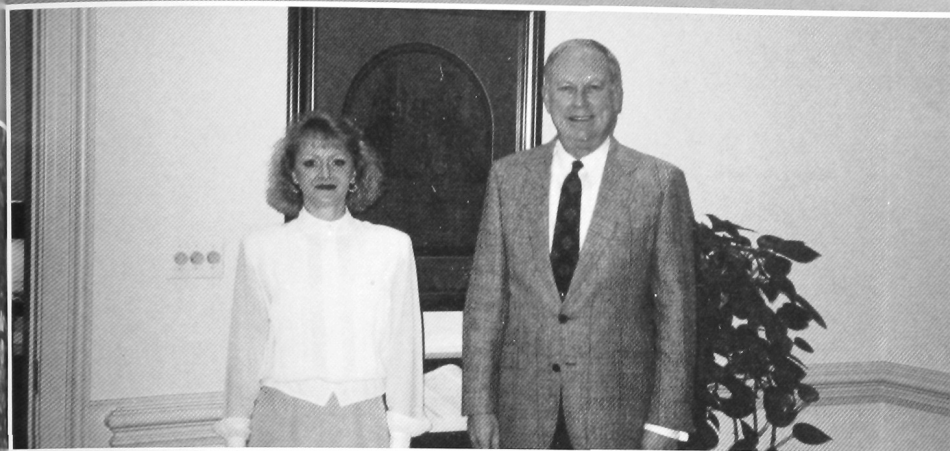

International Management Majors:
 Kimberly Marriott, Malinda Day, Grant Mastin, T.I. Todd, Anna Hendrix.

The Greek system brings strangers together who become friends, brothers, and sisters for a lifetime.

Greeks

Amy Deuterman, advisor of Panhellenic, and Katherine Hill, advisor of IFC, work very hard to help everything move smoothly.

The High Point University delegates enjoy the South Eastern Panhellenic Conference in Atlanta, Georgia.

Panhellenic

Panhellenic is the governing body of all the sororities at High Point University. Each sorority is represented and holds an office.

Panhellenic has a number of responsibilities, such as organizing Greek Week along with IFC, overseeing Rush, and promoting the general interest and welfare of Greek life.
